Title:
Investigation of rural-urban transition and its consequences in Shahr-e Kord & Farsan townships, Chahar Mahal va Bakhtiyari province

Abstract:
Abstract During the last half century, rapid population growth causes to distribute the harmonious development of cities, by transforming the village into the city. This naturally affects on spatial and population structure in country and Land use change causes their physical development. Therefore, purpose of this study is to evaluate the process of rural-urban transformation and its consequences, in Shahr-e-kord and Farsan in Chaharmahal Bakhtiari province. In order to collect data, documentary, archive and visualization method, statistical archives of Statistics organization and the Ministry of Interior, surveying maps, reports, etc. are used. Collected Information from the sample was analyzed and the based on hypotheses, the statistic has been concluded. Data from this study is analyzed by using SPSS and LISREL and research reports are presented in the form of descriptive and inferential analysis. The output of these models is in charts, tables and graphs statistics that is applied in knowledge, analysis of hypothesis testing. The results of this research can get a significant correlation between the physical and economic consequences, the same consequences of rural-urban transformation, the different impact outcomes in social, economic and physical dimension in Farsan and Shahr-e-kord.

Keywords:
Keywords: rural-urban transformation, rural-urban, rural, city, Shahr-e-Kord, Farsan