

Title :

Urban Historical Urban Texture Management with Emphasis on People's Participation (Case: Black Stone Shiraz)

Abstract :

The overall aim of this research is to survey the organization and revitalization of the historically worn texture of the Shiraz Stone Siah neighborhood with emphasis on the participation of the people. The present research is applied in terms of its purpose, but it is a combination of nature in nature. In order to carry out qualitative research and in the first stage of research, the statistical population of this study included experts and managers of district 8 in 50 people. In the next stage, quantitative research was carried out. The population consisted of all citizens and residents of the worn out tissue of the black stone district of Shiraz. The lack of the ability to list the statistical population was selected by using a sampling method of 70 people and a questionnaire was used on them. In this research, a researcher-made questionnaire was used to collect information. The questionnaires were submitted to the experts after editing, and the professors and experts confirmed the validity of the questions. The reliability of the questionnaire and the determination of correlation between Cronbach's alpha questions were calculated. The alpha questionnaire of the present research questionnaire was 78/8. Estimated. First, Smironov's colomotor test was used. Also, for the purpose of examining the hypotheses, we used inferential statistics and tests such as Spransen and Pearson and T test. In this study, besides using statistical tests, the results of the work through reason, evidence, reasons, documentation, interview, and argumentation and rejection have been discussed to reject or confirm the hypotheses. The results showed that the main problem of the black stone area was crowded and crowded, narrow streets and the lack of access to the second problem of the Black Stone, the environmental problems, the nobility surrounding the homes to their place of residence and the lack of educational, cultural, recreational and sports facilities is difficult. The main neighborhood.

Keywords :

Worn out texture, black stone neighborhood, shiraz, people's participation